The European Cultural Tourism Network (ECTN) was established in Brussels in 2009, following the merger of the networks set up by ECTN INTERREG IIIC operation led by Wales and CHIRON INTERREG IIIB CADSES (Network for European Cultural Tourism Authorities & Regions - NECTAR), led by EKPOL - 'Social & Cultural Council' of the then Magnesia Prefecture, now of Thessalia Region, Greece.

ECTN is an international association registered and based in Brussels.

Members are from 15 EU member's states and 4 associated other countries.

ECTN is the only network which brings together the tourism and cultural industry professionals working in several regions of Europe to exchange experience and information on best practice, as well as to develop new approaches and innovations

Objectives of ECTN:

- facilitate the development of transnational and inter-regional cooperation projects
- create new and innovative approaches and tools
- ensure improved cooperation and integration between the tourism and cultural sectors
- develop and improve training opportunities
- enable exchange of experience and best practice
- develop common responses to European Commission and other EU institutions consultations
- link with other networks
- facilitate sharing of research

ECTN works through three groups which are responsible to the Board and Directors:

Research group led by Barcelona University, LabPATC/Ibertur (Catalunya) seeks to work collaboratively on research to improve our understanding of the contribution that cultural tourism makes to regional economies, the role that it plays in stimulation the creative industries and the universities and HE establishments with an interest in cultural tourism. The Network seeks funding under Horizon 2020 for collaborative research and from other EU funding regimes for students and staff exchanges (Interreg Europe, Creative Europe, etc.).

Practitioners Group led by the 'Sibiu County Tourism Association' (Romania) exchange best practice and work collaboratively on the development of practical tools to improve the planning and management of cultural tourism destinations. An early priority is to work with Europa Nostra on an eco-label for sustainable cultural tourism destinations and the development of a bench marking system to support this. Again, project funding will be sought to fund these projects.

Policy group led the Vastra Gotaland Region (Sweden) utilises the evidence from the Research and Practitioners groups to influence policy makers working alongside local & regional politicians.
